

Religion, Philosophy & Ethics

A-Level AQA

The Course

In A level Ethics, Philosophy and Religion you will study: philosophy, ethics, Christianity and dialogues.

Paper 1: Philosophy of religion and ethics.

Paper 2: study of Christianity and dialogues

You will develop skills in argumentation, evidence-based support, analytical thinking, and open-minded exploration of new ideas.

Assessment

Paper 1 is split into 2 sections; in sections 1 (philosophy) and 2 (ethics) you answer all the questions

Paper 2 is split into 3 sections; in sections 1 and 2 you answer all questions, in section 3 you have a choice between two questions for both philosophy and ethics.

Each paper is 3 hours.

Entry Requirements

A-Level entry requirements plus:

- GCSE Grade 5+ in RE (or another humanities subject) is desirable.

Careers & Higher Education

An A Level in Ethics, philosophy and religion opens doors to diverse careers and provides a strong foundation for fields like Law or Business. Ethics, philosophy and religion builds critical thinking, cultural awareness, and a global perspective—key assets in today's workplace—broadening your worldview and enhancing career readiness.

"To be a good human being is to have a kind of openness to the world, an ability to trust uncertain things beyond your own control that can lead you to be shattered in very extreme circumstances and that yet makes your life worth living."

Martha Nussbaum. American philosopher, known for her work in ethics, political philosophy, and the philosophy of emotions.

